An Act to extend the law relating to Fisheries in [Haryana]

Whereas it is expedient to extend the law relating to Fisheries in [Haryana], it is hereby enacted as follows:-

1. Title and extent. - (1) This act may be called the Punjab Fisheries Act, 1914.

(2) It extends to the whole of [Haryana]

Object & Reasons6

Statement of Objects and Reasons. - The Bill extends the powers conferred on the Local Government by section 6 of the Indian Fisheries Act IV of 1897, to make rules for the protection of fish in selected waters. Experience has shown that the existing law is insufficient to prevent the wholesale slaughter of immature fish at the spawning grounds; and that a valuable source of food supply is in danger of being lost if unrestricted fishing is allowed to continue. Some rivers in the Punjab have already been depopulated to such an extent that a measure which will check the destruction of young fry and assist re-stocking by natural means is urgently required. Power is, therefore, given to the Local Government to make rules to prohibit fishing except under licence when this appears necessary; to declare a close time for any species of fish in any particular water; and to prescribe for each species a minimum size or weight below which no fish may be killed. In order to enforce these powers effectually, the rules may also prohibit the offer or exposure for sale of any fish the killing of which has been declared illegal.]
