(2) It extends to the whole of India except the State of Jammu and Kashmir.
(3) It shall be deemed to have come into force on the 25th day of June, 1993.

Object & Reasons ▼

Statement of Objects and Reasons. - Banks and financial institutions at present experience considerable difficulties in recovering loans and enforcement of securities charged with them. The existing procedure for recovery of debts due to the banks and financial institutions has blocked a significant portion of their funds in unproductive assets, the value of which deteriorates with the passage of time. The Committee on the financial system headed by Shri M. Narasimham has considered the setting up of the Special Tribunals with special powers for adjudication of such matters and speedy recovery as critical to the successful implementation of the financial sector reforms. An urgent need was, therefore, felt to work out a suitable mechanism through which the dues to the banks and financial institutions could be realised without delay. In 1981 a Committee under the Chairmanship of Shri T. Tiwari had examined the legal and other difficulties faced by banks and financial institutions and suggested remedial measures including changes in law. The Tiwari Committee had also suggested setting up of Special Tribunals for recovery of dues of the banks and financial institutions by following a summary procedure. The setting up of Special Tribunals will not only fulfil a long-felt need, but also will be an important step in the implementation of the Report of Narasimham Committee. Whereas on 30th September, 1990 more than fifteen lakhs of cases filed by the public sector banks and about 304 cases filed by the financial institutions were pending in various Courts, recovery of debts involved more than Rs. 5622 crores in dues of Public Sector Banks and about Rs. 391 crores of dues of the financial institutions. The locking up of such huge amount of public money in litigation prevents proper utilisation and recycling of the funds for the development of the country.

2. The Bill seeks to provide for the establishment of Tribunals and Appellate Tribunals for expeditious adjudication and recovery of debts due to banks and financial institutions.

Amendment Act 1 of 2000-Statement of Objects and Reasons.-The Recovery of Debts Due to Banks and Financial Institutions Act, 1993 was enacted on 27th August, 1993, to provide for the establishment of Tribunals for expeditious adjudication and recovery of debts due to banks and financial institutions and for matters connected therewith or incidental thereto.

2. The legality and validity of the Act was, however, challenged in the Delhi High Court. In the matter of Delhi High Court Bar Association v. Union of India A.I.R. 1995 Del. 323, the Delhi High Court in its judgment and order dated 10th March, 1995, while upholding the powers of the Central Government to constitute Tribunals other than the Tribunals constituted in exercise of the powers under articles 323-A and 323-B of the Constitution, declared the aforesaid Act unconstitutional and void on grounds which, inter alia, include that-

(i) the Act does not contain provisions for set-off, counter-claims or

- transfer of cases from one Tribunal to another;
- (ii) the Act has placed the Tribunals on a pedestal higher than the High Court in respect of monetary jurisdiction; and
- (iii) the judiciary has been given no role in the appointment of Presiding Officers.

3. In the special leave petition, filed before it, the Hon'ble Supreme Court on March 18, 1996, while dealing with Transfer Petitions (Civil) Nos. 659-667 of 1995 directed that notwithstanding any stay order passed in any of the writ petitions sought to be transferred to the Supreme Court, the Debts Recovery Tribunals established under the Recovery of Debts Due to Banks and Financial Institutions Act, 1993, shall resume their functions. The Debts Recovery Tribunals have been functioning under the stay order granted by the Supreme Court for over fifty months. In subsequent hearings before the Hon'ble Supreme Court, a submission was made that the Central Government would consider amending the Act to address the legal anomalies while ensuring that the dedicated nature of the recovery system does not get diluted. In the backdrop of the observation made by the Supreme Court, there was a possibility that the Supreme Court would vacate the stay order against the order of the Delhi High Court. In such an eventuality, the Tribunals would cease to exist, all cases which have been transferred to Debts Recovery Tribunals from the High Courts or have been freshly instituted before the Debts Recovery Tribunals would have to be transferred back to the respective High Courts and all progress made by the Tribunals would be undone. The above circumstances necessitated that the proposed amendments may be given effect by promulgation of an Ordinance. These amendments have been made to address the legal anomalies observed by the Hon'ble Court. It is now necessary that the Ordinance may be replaced by an Act.

4. Amendments to the Recovery of Debts Due to Banks and Financial Institutions Act, 1993, are proposed to ensure expeditious adjudication and recovery of dues to banks and financial institutions, remove legal anomalies and strengthen the Recovery Tribunals. The main provisions of the Bill relate to-

- (i) set-off and counter-claims, appointment of Receivers and Commissioners by the Tribunal, transfer of cases from one Tribunal to another and appointment of more than one Recovery Officer in a Tribunal;
- (ii) empowering the Tribunals to issue certificate for recovery of enhanced or reduced amount on the basis of the final order of the Appellate Tribunal;

- (iii) empowering the Chairperson of the Appellate Tribunal to appraise the work of Presiding Officers of Tribunals and discharge functions of the Chairperson of another Appellate Tribunal;

- (v) empowering the Tribunals to distribute sale proceeds among the secured creditors in accordance with the provisions of section 529-A of the Companies Act;
